

DAT310 exam report

The application is a web shop, where users can buy certain products.

User account details like username and password hash are stored in the database. Details about the products like product id, title, price and description is stored in the database. Users shopping cart will be stored in a cookie. Users previous purchases will be stored in the database.

Initial layout

